Those who come to North Battleford this week-end may be in for continued good treatment at the gasoline pumps. The price of a litre of fuel for your car or truck remains at 49.9 cents. Wednesday evening Saskatoon prices were 56.9 and some places in the province it was as high as 58.9.

Actually there should be many people coming to the city, or at least passing through it this week-end. Some will be passing this way to Sundance Stables where the Quarter Horse Club will be going flat-out with all kinds of competitions on both Saturday and Sunday. Among them will be hunter jumping and gymkhanas. Horses will be moving through their paces from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Sarah Wood is a member of the committee.

Out in Glenburn Regional Park the Slow-Pitch Ball Tournament sponsored by Zone 7 Special Olympics will get into gear also. There are all kinds of things scheduled for the park this week-end. People will be attending from the city and travelling through the city to attend that event.

Within the next two weeks other people will be arriving in North Battleford from along the Central North American Trade Corridor. The managing director, Steven Pedersen and a bus load of people from Minot, North Dakota, and surrounding areas will be here. At least one of the other Saskatchewan Directors, Phillip Mamchur, of Estevan will be here too. Saskatoon's University of Saskatchewan Assistant Program Director and Trade Corridor Director Doug Bicknell is on holidays and will not be able to attend. Lloyd Boutilier, Manager of the Corporate and Independent Business Centre of the Royal Bank and Director of the Central North American Trade Corridor, from Regina, is fully committed elsewhere.
