QUALITY SPORT CHECKLIST FOR COMMUNITIES AND CLUBS

Based on Long-Term Development in Sport and Physical Activity

Quality sport and physical activity is achieved when the right people do the right things at the right times, resulting in positive experiences for participants. It is based on a Long-Term Development approach. This checklist defines the elements that lead to Quality Sport experiences in any sport program. It has been designed with everyone in mind, including women and girls, indigenous populations, participants with a physical or cognitive disability, and newcomers to Canada. This checklist can be used as a tool by community and club leaders to assess and improve the quality of their sport programs.

Good programs, that are developmentally appropriate, are:
Participant Centered
	Ability, age, size, and maturity are all considered when grouping participants.
	Participants are actively engaged in the game or activity and fully included by teammates.
	All holistic aspects of participation are considered, including mental (intellectual and emotional), physical, cultural and spiritual.
Progressive and Challenging
	Participants are learning and building on their existing skills.
	There are options to make an activity more or less challenging based on participant's skills and capabilities.
	In the early stages, participants get to play different positions and/or try different events and sports (physicalliteracy.ca).
Well Planned
	Programs and practices are well-prepared and are delivered in context of seasonal and annual plans.
	The program is aligned with the national sport organization's Long-Term Athlete Development framework, or when possible, has been designed by a national sport organization (sportforlife.ca/resources/quality-sport-programs).
	The club connects participants to developmentally appropriate programs and opportunities, which may include different levels (tiers), types of play, competition, or activities.
	In the early stages, leaders emphasize skill development over winning.
	In the early stages, programs develop fundamental movement skills, in addition to sport-specific skills.
Designed for Meaningful Competition
	Based on stage of development, the participants are playing small-sided games with fewer players, competing in shorter distances, or playing for modified lengths of time (sportforlife.ca/qualitysport/long-term-athlete-development).
	Rules are modified based on the ability and stage of the participants.
	In the early stages, teams, groups, lines, or categories are balanced so that participants of similar ability compete against each other, giving everyone a chance to struggle and succeed.
	In the early stages, all participants get to play and practice equally. Elimination competition formats are not used.
	Competition is timed appropriately for learning, and is affordable and accessible.
